Raider Review

By JANE GUILL

Four familiar, but once new, faces at Appomattox County High School belong to four student teachers. These student teachers are at ACHS as part of a student teaching program set up by Longwood College. They will be student teaching for ten weeks.

The student teachers are: Miss Diane Mitchell, who is teaching senior English; Miss Sharon Dowdy, home economics; Miss Marsha Booth, U.S. history; and Miss Margaret Bosley, physical education, and health.

As they teach they are being evaluated by the teacher whose class they have taken over, the department supervisor and education department supervisor, both from Longwood. They have to teach the classes as if they were the actual teacher. They must prepare unit plans, daily lesson plans, prepare tests, handle any discipline problems, and handle the whole class with suggestions from the regular teacher on how and what to do. All teachers must go through student teaching.

Mrs. Betty Jo Smith, home economics teacher, feels that student teaching is a good "learning experience." I learned more through student teaching than I did in college," commented Mrs. Smith. The only problem Mrs. Smith sees with the program is, the student teachers need more time observing before they begin teaching.

Miss Brenda Waldron, English teacher, also feels that student teaching is a good program. "Having the responsibility of the entire class is the only way a student teacher can establish herself as a teacher," said Miss Waldron.

Although, most teachers like having student teachers, most students do not. Kim Carter, a senior at ACHS, doesn't like student teachers because they "change everything you have been doing."

"Student teachers seem as though they are playing school as I did when I was little, giving as much work as they possibly can," said Kim Chenault, a senior at ACHS.

Mike Richardson commented, "Student teachers are OK, but are a nuisance to go through. I would prefer my regular teacher."

On the other hand there are some students who do like student teachers. "I think student teachers are much easier to get along with than regular teachers. I think they relate better with students because they are students themselves," said Roslyn Megginson.

Miss Dowdy said she really enjoys student teaching, her only problem is that some students are "really talkative." Miss Dowdy has taken two field trips with her classes. She took her family living classes to Lynchburg to purchase material and patterns for a sewing project, and she took her specialized classes who have been studying child development, to Longwood College for a tour of the home economics building and the children's day care center.

Miss Bosley also likes student teaching. "You finally get the opportunity to apply the techniques you have learned at college," said Miss Bosley.

The student teachers at ACHS have only one week left to teach. Good luck to them as they become teachers next year!

Primary PTA holds meeting

The Appomattox Primary School PTA met on Thursday, March 18 at 7 p.m. An informative program, "Parents and Teachers Developing Children's Thinking Skills" was presented by guest speaker, Dr. Sue Davis.

Dr. Davis, Elementary Supervisor for the State Department of Education, defined 'critical thinking' as opposed to 'creative thinking' and outlined ways in which parents and educators can help children in developing critical thinking skills even as early as the preschool years.

Laying the proper foundation for such thinking skills can be done utilizing such everyday things as advertisements in print, on television and in packaging. Dr. Davis provided several demonstrations of this using volunteers from the audience and everything from M&M's to Bounty Paper Towels.

A silk floral arrangement was presented to Dr. Davis by PTA vice president, Tom Bowman.

Items of business discussed at the meeting included a PTA by-laws revision which would raise annual dues from $1.00 to $2.00. This revision was adopted.

Officers for the 1982-83 school year were elected as follows: president, Paul Kvasnicka; vice president, Tawanna Lee; secretary, Sandy Wilbun; treasurer, Diane Williams; reporter, Wanda Booth.

President Paul Kvasnicka reported on the transition of Pamplin Elementary School to the Primary School and welcomed visitors from Pamplin Elementary School.

An announcement of an upcoming Parent-Teacher coffee to be held April 15 from 9:30 until 10:30 a.m. concerning gifted and talented was made. Another coffee for parents of kindergartners who will enter the 1982-83 session will be held on April 30 from 9:30 until 10:30 a.m.

1. Soften hard brown sugar--Place open box in oven with cup of hot water. Microwave 1½ to 2 ½ minutes; or, measure the amount needed into a glass dish. Add slice of fresh bread, apple wedge or damp paper towel. Cover. One cup takes 30 seconds to soften.

2. Melt unsweetened chocolate in small custard cup. Microwave one square on high for 1 ½ minutes.

3. Melt semi-sweet chocolate pieces by microwaving on high until glossy, about 1 ½ to 2 minutes for 6 ounces, and then stir until smooth.

4. Soften stick of butter or margarine - Unwrap and microwave uncovered 1 ½ minutes at low power.

5. Soften cream cheese - Unwrap and microwave uncovered 2 minutes on low power for 3 ounces, 3 minutes for 8 ounces.

6. Melt marshmallow cream - Place one-half of a 7-ounce jar in glass bowl and microwave on high for 35 to 40 seconds. Stir.

7. Soften ice cream on low power at 20 second intervals until desired softness has been reached.

8. Hot fudge or butterscotch topping - Remove cap and heat jar for 30 to 45 seconds. Stir.

9. Marshmallow cereal squares: Melt 4 tablespoons butter in large bowl for 35 to 45 seconds. Add 30 large marshmallows. Microwave uncovered on medium high for one minute. Stir in 5 cups crisp rice cereal. Press into buttered 13 x 9 x 2-inch dish. Cool and cut.

10. Hot Pie - Microwave one slice 30 to 45 seconds.

11. Warm cookies - Place 2 on a napkin. Microwave on high for 25 to 30 seconds. Two frozen cookies take 35 to 45 seconds.

12. Toast coconut - Spread ½ cup in pie plate. Microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring every 30 seconds after 1½ minutes.

13. Clarify honey that has turned to sugar - Uncap the container and heat in jar for 20 second intervals until liquified.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Reuben Casserole

1 can (16oz.) sauerkraut, drained

1 can (12 oz.) corned beef, broken into small pieces

2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

¼ cup bottled Thousand Island salad dressing (reduced calorie can be used)

2 medium tomatoes, sliced

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

¼ cup pumpernickle bread crumbs

1. Place sauerkraut in 1 ½-quart glass casserole. Top with corned beef, then shredded cheese. Combine mayonnaise and Thousand Island dressing, spread over cheese. Top with tomato slices, set aside. Place butter in small glass bowl.

2 Microwave for about 1 minute, on ROAST, or until melted. Stir in bread crumbs. Sprinkle buttered crumbs over tomato slices.

3. Microwave for 12-14 minutes, on ROAST, or until heated through (about 150°F.). Let stand 5 minutes before serving. About 6 servings.

4. In a conventional oven, bake at 325° for 20 minutes, or until hot and bubbly.

Tip: Crumble about 2 slices dry pumpernickle bread to make crumbs. Rye bread may be used in place of pumpernickle if preferred.

Good news for homemakers

Managing pastures

By JAMES A. SMITH

Practical pasture management suggests that it makes sense to spend pasture fertilizer and lime dollars where they will give the greatest return. This will usually be on the soils with the most production potential and where a reasonably productive sod is already present. Continue to maintain those pastures with poor stands on less productive soils by grazing and/or mowing to keep brush and weeds down with the goal of liming, fertilizing and perhaps reseeding when funds are available. Don't let the most productive pastures lose their productivity even if some of the least desirable pasture needs help.

"The South 40" by JAMES A. SMITH EXTENSION AGENT

A basic management goal is to maintain 30 - 40% clover in the pasture sod. The clover provides nitrogen for the grass stand and greatly improves the nutritive value of the pasture.

Overseeding of clover is one of the most economical and effective ways to improve tall grass stands such as orchardgrass and tall fescue. Clover adds to the quality and yield of the hay crop and grazing. Nitrogen costs continue to rise; clover is becoming to an even greater extent the only affordable source of nitrogen on pastures. Clover in pastures reduces fescue foot and other nutritional problems.

For overseeding of clover to be effective, there are four factors to be satisfied: (1) the existing stand must be grazed or mowed short to minimize its competition with the new seedlings; (2) the fertility level must be high enough to support clover growth; (3) the seeding must be early, before April 1; (4) viable seed of an adoptable variety must be used. For a hay-pasture or pasture only are use 2-3 pounds of red clover plus 1-2 pounds of ladino or tillman clover.

Simply broadcast clover on the sod and use a spike-tooth harrow to cover with a small amount of sod. Cattle can be left on the sod to help tread seed into the ground. A grain drill is particularly effective if grass seed is to be added to the clover that is seeded.

Creep grazing is another very simple and inexpensive way of making better use of pastures. This permits the use of the best grazing available for calves, which need it to add additional pounds. At the same time, cows which do not require high quality grazing, are forced to graze lower quality pastures which helps control weeds and brush.

A creep gate makes it possible for calves to get to the higher quality pasture.

Hay fields, alfalfa, small grains in winter all provide excellent creep grazing for calves. Research at the Northern Virginia Research Station over two years showed that creep grazed calves gain 50 pounds more per grazing season than those calves that did not have access to creep grazing. The actual response will depend on the quality of the creep grazed pasture compared to where the cow herd is held.
